March 2025

Admit

- Added ability for a "folder or "category" model for custom fields, compl ete with create, read, update, and delete (CRUD) abilities. This lays the groundwork for better data grouping later on.

- Added a folder reference to the custom fields table, making it simpler to categorize or group custom fields for our schools.

- The ADMIT API can now create and update custom field answers, so you don't have to open the UI for every change.

- Gave API tokens a property that sets them as either read-only or editable. A security boost ensuring tokens only do what schools intend.

- Key details—like names and addresses—are consistently flagged as required in application setup, so you won't miss any critical info.

- Bulk Email Templates now include tags for Student First Name and Preferred Name, making it simple to personalize messages on a large scale.

Enroll

- The mobile navigation bar icon has moved to the right side. This small shift makes it easier to spot the menu toggle on smaller screens.

- Refresh to the icons in browser tabs to match our evolving visual style.

- Updated the Enroll login page logo.

- ENROLL now uses Bootstrap v5, leading to sleeker layouts, updated styling options, and a sturdier foundation for future upgrades.

Hub

- A version stamp now displays in the HUB interface. It shows which release is running at-a-glance, so teams don't have to dig through logs or documentation.

- We tightened the code that handles certain HUB interactions through htmx. This under-the-hood polishing makes performance steadier for everyone.
